Do the "Write" Thing Essay

Knowing that I come from a family with a abusive father could be a reason why I get angry easily. The definition of violence in my eyes are the terrible things that happen in our surroundings such as our neighborhoods, homes, etc. I believe that violence occurs from the majority of kids is because they see people around them behaving in that way so they follow in their footsteps. Violence can also start because of what people say on social networks. They could be Facebook, Twitter, etc. Statuses that kids post that are disrespectful but not for a specific person could start violence. It could start violence because someone could think that the post is about them but really its not and a fight or argument happens over a social network.

Violence has affected my life because if it wasn't for violence then I would of had both of my parents in my life but instead of that I had one. I would of had most of my family members if violence never existed. I think violence has affected more of the people I know then me only.

Some things that I could do to stop violence is use my popularity to advantage and get the word out that violence needs to stop because it's making the world worst instead of making the world better. I would try to stay out of drama and try to get along with everyone. I can't say that I never got into a fight and started violence. I would try to tell people to stay positive and not to go into the path of violence. Also not to do anything that could lead to violence.

Violence is a very serious issue. It could start by the use of drugs or social networks. I haven't been affected by violence as worst as some of my family members have. Violence could start by tons of things. The only thing you can do is avoid it.
