Do the “write” thing essay

-Violence is like a plague in the world that you cannot change. It can affect the most innocent. The violence can show his evil face in a whole different ways it can be in drugs, rivalries against others and even in people who have mental illnesses. Violence has also destroyed a lot of families and set the future of many children. Many people hate violence and we want to stop this plague so we can have a better world.

- I feel blessed because violence had never affected my life but I feel insecure when I see his face around me. Violence has affected the way I think and the way I see this world now I take more care of my family and myself. I thank God because I haven’t see violence’s face and I would like to never see it but I know that I going to have to confront him one day

- There are many causes of youth violence many of them start from school either someone talking trash about you or to be popular this is one of the reason I believe that many teenager do not want to be violent they just want to be popular and the rather be a follower and hurt others just to get the precious popularity.

- I think youth violence is a process of our life that would never stop if we don’t do something about it because the change is not in the community center or in a youth meeting this is in all us and we are the ones who make the change so we can be better in life.
-There are a lot of cases of teenage death you can see it daily in the news all because of violence. We all want to stop this plague so we can live in a better world.
