Has violence affected your life? Violence has affected my life in the way me and other people lives. You are not free, you always have to lock your doors, you can't stay in the streets at any time, and if a parent sent their kids to some place they are always worrying because they know violence exist so they don't have freedom. They don't want to leave their kids somewhere by themselves. I remember one time I was watching the news and they said that a boy was playing basketball by himself at his backyard and a man just shot him in the head. I felt so sad and mad because the boy was innocent and it was not fair that he was just starting his life and a bad person just end it.
I don't know what happened earlier and I can't recall the events that occurred. I'm not sure what I did or what I was thinking. It seems like a confusing time. I think I should try to remember the events, but I'm not sure how to do that. I think I should try to find some documents or notes that might help me remember. I'm not sure if I should try to talk to someone about this or just try to figure it out on my own.
I think the causes of violence are people that have problems and they take drugs and put all of their problems on other people and kill or hurt them. A teenage boy or girl maybe want to get more attention to their parents or if their parents are separating and they are just mad and turn to a bad person because of their problems and anger.

What I can do about youth violence is not the right answer it's what the whole world should do. If a person have a friend that's having problems and thinking about doing bad stuff they should talk to them and change their minds and in schools they should create a special room for kids that are having problems to express their feelings and maybe that could change and reduce violence.
I don't think I can come to visit you.

I need to talk to my mom before.

I don't want to tell her about writing a report on the beach. I want to tell her about writing an essay on the beach.

I don't want to tell her about writing a report on the beach.

I don't want to tell her about writing an essay on the beach.

I don't want to tell her about writing a report on the beach.

I don't want to tell her about writing an essay on the beach.
Has violence affected your life? Violence has affected my life in the way me and other people's lives. You are not free, you always have to lock your doors, you can't stay in the streets at any time, and if a parent sent their kids to some place they are always worrying because they know violence exist so they don't have freedom. They don't want to leave their kids somewhere by themselves. I remember one time I was watching the news and they said that a boy was playing basketball by himself at his backyard and a man just shot him in the head. I felt so sad and mad because the boy was innocent and it was not fair that he was just starting his life and a bad person just end it.
I think the causes of violence are people that have problems and they take drugs and put all of their problems on other people and kill or hurt them. A teenage boy or girl maybe want to get more attention to their parents or if their parents are separating and they are just mad and turn to a bad person because of their problems and anger.

What I can do about youth violence is not the right answer it's what the whole world should do. If a person have a friend that's having problems and thinking about doing bad stuff they should talk to them and change their minds and in schools they should create a special room for kids that are having problems to express their feelings and maybe that could change and reduce violence.