What is youth violence? Youth violence is one of the many situations discussed on the every day news. Most things that have to do with youth violence are drugs, money, guns alcohol, bullying, and committing crimes. These things are the beginning of youth violence. One way or another we have to stop youth violence. Young people experience violence everywhere including their homes and this violence need to come to an end.

Some causes of youth violence are gangs, guns and weapons. When a young person gets hold of a gun they feel compelled to use it whenever they get into the least bit of trouble. Allot of crime situations have to do with some one getting hurt in the crossfire. Another large problem in Boston is there street gangs. One problem with gangs is children being introduced to peer pressure. So even if a person doesn't want to commit a crime their peers pressure them into it. and these are just some causes of youth violence.

Some effects of youth violence are death this is one of the many casualties youth violence leads up to. See this also has effects on people's families. It causes emotional damage, Seeing families hurt and cry because they will never be able to see their children ever again. The last effect that I will be telling you about is Drugs. Drugs are such a large incident because they are very addictive. Kids try it because of their natural curiosities but are not able to stop because the drug is so addicting. And these are some effects of youth violence.

How do you think youth violence effects others like you? I think youth violence effects others live because it causes physical, emotional and money damages. Because people are dyeing and that eventually causes emotional damages. In the mist of the violence people are getting hurt and killed, as you know this is physical. this effects. And peoples money because what if a woman's husband dies and he helped pay the bills what will she do now. These are some things people should be thinking about. In some way the violence will reach every one in the community.

In conclusion, I think that every one should play a role in youth violence because there is a way every one can do something to slow it down to a stop. I think the way most kids could help out is to not get themselves involved. And I think that parents could help by getting their children out of gangs if possible and keep them out. These are some causes and effects of youth violence.
