Youth violence

Youth violence simply means the violation of the rights and freedom of a person or an individual. When the rights and freedom of an individual are violated there is no peace in the country or society. Youth violence is learned behaviors that children often experience violence for the first time in their homes or in their community. This first taste of violence may include their family members or friends. Whenever children witness those kind of violent acts, they grow up to become involved in those kind of acts.

First and foremost, there are many causes of youth violence but I would like to mention a few. One cause of this act is bullying. Whenever students bully each other and unfortunately one of the students get hurt severely. Our parents are those who suffer for that or take responsibility for that. When this continues to go on, then space will never prevail. In order for us to live peacefully in this country, we need to stop this bad act.

Another cause of this act is due to peer influence. Bad peers usually influence most children. When children make friends with bad people or friends they are usually influenced into this kind of act, which is very bad. You sometimes find this kind of people stealing and doing other kind of bad acts.

Lastly another major cause of youth violence is due to poor parental control. When parents are not able to take care or control their children in a good way, the children always join bad groups because they know that after all, their parents are not going to do anything to them. When this happens, the children begin to join bad groups or bad friends.

I would like to suggest that, in order to stop this bad act then we need to be vigilant on each other. We need to call the police to arrest those who violate the rights and freedom of the individual in this country, for peace to prevail.
