Youth Violence
Youth violence is hard to deal with in a community. The way it starts is with conflict, then turns into fighting. As young people, and adults youth violence needs to end because if it doesn’t it will get out of hand. If you are involved in youth violence, you will be faced with many consequences. Such as prison and community service. So therefore, keep our community safe, unless you want to wear orange for the rest of your life.

Youth violence starts with conflict and disagreement. For example, if two people hate each other conflict will occur. Then it becomes serious to how they are trying to kill each other. Then when that happens you hear on fox news channel 25 that your child has died from youth violence. Also gangs are the other cause of youth violence because they are influencing good kids to do the wrong thing.
Some effects that happen after youth violence is death. The reason is because it becomes a serious act when it happens. So if you fight, your anger will take over and you will try to kill people and that’s how youth violence starts. So don’t let your anger take over in hate, and killing because you don’t want to get in trouble for killing someone.

In my opinion, youth violence has been hard for me because one, I can’t go outside as often as I used to. Two-curfew time so nothing happens to me. Last is always having to watch out for my self. I wish youth violence would end because I am tired of it. It’s like, will it end?

In order to stop youth violence, you need to call the police. The reason is because they can keep you safe. Second, tell your parents so they can protect you. Lastly is to stay off the streets and find a way home at night without walking. The reason is because you never know what the police can do because they can stop you, and interrogate you for no reason.
