How has violence affected my life?

One way violence has affected my life is not liking to walk by myself in the night. This has affected my life because I'm scared that someone would rob me, shoot me, kidnap me, or rape me. This also involves me not trusting any strangers.

What are the causes of youth violence?

One of the causes of youth violence is arguments. When kids argue they want to start fighting and when that happens a lot of kids start getting hurt. Another cause of youth violence is where people are from. Like if kids are from the academies or heart street or Mission Hill park, other kids would think there bad so they would be enemies and try to hurt each other. My last one is girls; kids think that a girl is there girl friend so if another boy tries to mess with the girl, the boys are going to start arguing or going to start to fight.

What can I do about youth violence?

One thing I can do about youth violence is to ignore it or go away. You shouldn't try to go and help fight that person. You should go some where else and not be in there bussiness. Another thing you should do is to report it. If your in school and there's something happening, you should tell a teacher, a principal or any adult you find. If you're out in the street, you should call 911 and if you don't have a phone, tell a stranger (person) to call 911. The last thing you could do is try to talk stout. If you do that, it might put you in danger because they might lump you. It's still good to try.

Another thing is where are you confronted? In school? At home? In your neighborhood? Well in my opinion, it's mostly in your neighborhood or at your school because there's more kids and there's lots of bad kids. Also that there's more bullying in school or your neighborhood. This is my opinion.

These are ways that violence has affected my life, mostly kids though.
