Violence in the Neighborhood

Violence is bad because it is something that is done physically or mentally done to someone else. Types of violence that I see are fighting, bullying or just being abusive. Also, one of these times I was a part of it. But I made a mistake and a time I saw violence was in my neighborhood. This was at the basketball court in a summer's day and it was horrible. It was childish fight in my opinion and it should not have happened. I saw about ten fights within the same hour and they were all for different reasons. But the major one was when a guy pulled a man by the hair and almost killed him. Then after that, he was pushed into a fence and they kept on going at it. After that he ran after him and it was horrible. Later he began to chase him and they kept on going at it and it should not happen. He continuously punched him again and again. I believe this was self-inflicted pain and I think there should have been someone calling the cops. It was inflicted pain because this person was just continuously hurting him over and over again.

First of all, it is irresponsible to even fight because it makes you seem as if you are a bad person and people are fear them who fight. After my fight, I think I tried to tell him that I was sorry but he would not accept my apology to him. Even after I noticed there was another fight going on and it was just outrageous and I just could not do anything or I would be seen as a person who just tells police and I would have been disliked by some friends. Violence is horrible and I do not think anybody should do it. Another fight that happened that day when someone got mad for a basketball call and he just got so angry. So what I did was trying and not does anything because if I got in the middle of it would not have gone anywhere. Then after that, there was another fight and it kept on going for another hour or so. But then I noticed that there was another fight happening and it was just me and some friends, so it was crazy. I tried to stop it and then I thought that they would stop, but they continued. Nobody was stopping us so I punched a kid who was disrespecting my brother honestly went back to back and everyone just watched and I just could not do anything. But I believe I fought for respect and the other times people just did it for just childish things. But do not get me wrong, it was a horrible thing to do. There is no reason for fighting.

Second of all, fighting is just childish because conflict should be put in authority of others, such as the police. But the kids fighting were in their 20's and I tried to tell them to stop. It was not the best idea for someone of my age to do and I should have just told someone but I just kept my mouth shut. Then I began to think of it and noticed that the violence that had happened that should have never happened. After this the day came to an end and I was walking back home and saw another fight on the way home and I was unsleashed honestly all I saw was a horrible thing. It made me feel helpless.

Third of all, it is rare to have someone fighting around my neighborhood and so it kind of scares me. I think I need to stay away from fighting or even at that court ever again. But I guess I kind of broke that rule, but it does not mean I will again. Then later on I thought a little about what violence actually is and I no longer want to be a part of a world that is covered with violence. I believe it is not okay for this to be happening and I want to be making a difference slowly and I believe I can be doing this from studying hard and trying to help those people who have seen violence as I have. But I believe that by doing this I help everyone around us and it is pretty weird of others to have violence go on over and over again. Another way this can be stopped is in my opinion is to tell someone of authority such as a cop, or a parent. Violence is bad, but it can be limited. It can held by us the people can have an agreement on having neighbors doing a watch or having a cop patrol the place once or twice to check if everything is safe.
