My school years and Violence

Violence is the behavior involving physical force intended to hurt, damage, or kill someone or something. Violence can also mean abuse or injury to meaning, content, or intent. The day I learned about violence was when I started going to middle school. Therefore, this is why I am going to inform you about the violence that I witness during my years in middle school and the way I learned how to prevent them.

I would go to school every day for the first couple of months and pay attention. As I soon realize that when I start seeing arguments of kids fighting each other across the hallways, in class, through cafeterias, or even outside afterschool, I start imagining what will happen next when they see each other again. There were days that when I walk out of the classroom or go to my lockers, kids would start to go mad or even start a riot and beat each other up. It was very frustrating to see how bad it was when two people start fighting over someone or something. It wasn't the teenagers who started the violence but the violence that started the teenagers to make such a riot.

Another reason why violence is a dangerous approach is because when you start finding trouble or witnessing a fight you will always be involved in the outcome. In my community, youth violence has happened when I start watching the news because I see things that doesn't affect our community very well as it is supposed to be such as cops chasing bad guys or even serial killers. I would occur every morning every day when I wake up for school and start seeing the news
a little to see what is wrong with our community. Whenever I start thinking about violence, I would want to think of my friends and family because if there is going to be something bad happening to me, my friends or family will always be there for me and when they are always there for me, I would always be there for them. Violence can occur anytime, anywhere, and any place and so you better not have violence in you because if you do, then it can cause trouble and nobody would want trouble.

One way to prevent a violent situation is to be praise and encouragement, be watchful, or friendship. Praise and encouragement was one of my first reasons to show that teachers and parents should endeavor to praise, encourage and possibly reward their kids for their good performance because these kinds of gestures motivate and ginger them to do better with the hope of getting more reward. Being watchful was one of my second reason to show that teachers and parents should watch closely over the kids because if kids are giving more time, it will help develop intimacy and more insights into some areas of concern that were yet unknown. Friendship was my final reason to show that a lot can be done among the peer group towards reducing the level of violent behaviors because a good friend should ensure that he/she is his brother's keeper. A friend in need is a friend indeed.

As time went by, I realized that I needed one way to prevent a violent situation and that is to stand up for myself if trouble was there. Middle school was a tough year for me and I didn't know that I was going to expect what I was going to expect in middle school.
