I think that youth violence should definitely be stopped. Youth violence can hurt many people in the world. Youth violence can also stop people from going to school, which can stop people from getting a good education. The reason might be that youth could happen to people in school. This is why youth violence should definitely be stopped. I have a couple of reasons youth violence should be stopped. One of the reasons is that it can be bad in certain places in the world. This is because it can make people do things that they don't want to do. Also it could lead to a lot of bad things. Another one of the reasons is that youth violence can scare many people. People can be scared of the people that start youth violence. One last reason why youth violence should be stopped is that it can give people bad memories. When certain things happen because of youth violence, it can give people bad memories. These are three reasons why youth violence should be stopped. There are probably lots of other reasons why it should be stopped. But you never know there might not be reasons why youth violence should not be stopped. Well, here are some reasons why youth violence may not be stopped. Here are three reasons why it should not be stopped. One reason is that youth violence might not stop people from going to school. This is because most of the people at that school might be a part of youth violence. They can hurt other kids or do bad things to others. You never know what might be happening to some kids. Another reason maybe it should not be stopped is youth violence can scare some people. This could happen if maybe people will not do bad things to others. Also that people might not hurt others near certain people. Which will not make people as scared as they were before. But it depends on what you may do to others. One last reason is that it might not give people bad memories. It depends on what they might see happen. Also they might of seen things from when they were younger. Also they could of erased the memories from there mind. To do this they would clear or close there eyes so they would not see what would happen. You never know what people think. Some might think that youth violence should be stopped or that youth violence should not be stopped. They could also think that it should and it should not be stopped. But you can not be sure of what will happen. There is a lot of possibilities of what could happen. Youth violence happens in many places in the world. I know about what happens because of youth violence. I have had some expeiriene with youth violence. I was very afraid of the things that had happened. I think that should definitly should be stopped. But this is just my opinion. Many others might think very different from what I think.
