Youth Violence Essay
By: Lisa Marie Burke

Youth violence has not affected my life in any way but I did hear a story on the news. It was in the morning and a prayer group was gathered in the lobby of Heath High School. Before the start of class a freshman at the school opened fire in the lobby. The youth killed three girls and wounding five other students. Now the freshman is in jail for 15 years. Youth violence affected the freshman’s life because if he didn’t do the incident then he would have never gone to jail. That’s how youth violence has affected somebody else’s life.

There are many causes of youth violence. Three important and common causes are being bullied, family problems, and peer pressure. Being bullied causes youth violence because if you are being bullied then you might want to hurt or get revenge on the person who is bulling you to get all your anger out. Family problems causes violence because if there is something going on at home or something is happening to you or an family member then you might get sad or mad. A person would probably take there anger out on a certain person to remove the pain. Peer pressure causes youth violence because sometimes friends want you to do bad things and make bad decisions. Friends sometimes beg you to do something that you know it’s not right but sometimes kids do it anyways because they want there friend to not be mad at them for not doing it. That’s how being bullied, family problems, and peer pressure causes youth violence.

There are many ways to stop youth violence and everyone should try to stop it. A way to stop it is to walk away. If someone is making fun of you or who you are then ignore them because they are not defining you, they are defining themselves. The second way is to give respect to get respect. Respect everyone because the person might get upset and try to hurt you. The third way is to speak up. If you see someone getting bullied then tell a grown adult for they can stop it. The forth way to stop youth violence is to lead and to not follow. If you see one of your friends doing something wrong then don’t follow them because you are your own person so be a leader. The fifth way to stop youth violence is to think about your future! If you do things wrong like drink when under age, join gangs, or hurting
Your Violence Essay

Youth Violence affects my life in many ways. I feel there is a story to be told.

The news is filled with stories of school shootings and other acts of violence. Between the news, movies, and literature, the topic of Youth Violence is prevalent. The majority of these stories are not positive. The victims are often children or teenagers. The offenders are often young adults. Youth Violence is everywhere. It is hard to escape.

There are many causes of Youth Violence. These include: family problems, peer pressure, bullying, and depression.

Family problems can cause Youth Violence. If a child grows up in a dysfunctional family, they may learn to deal with stress and problems in unhealthy ways. They may learn to use violence as a way to protect themselves. Peer pressure can also be a factor. Some children may feel pressure to conform to certain norms or expectations. This can lead them to engage in violent behavior.

Depression and other mental health issues can also contribute to Youth Violence. Children and adolescents who struggle with depression or anxiety are more likely to engage in violent behavior. They may feel hopeless or helpless, leading them to turn to violence as a way to cope.

There are many ways to stop Youth Violence and prevent it from happening. One way to stop it is to work with communities. It is important to get the message out. Another way is to get help from professionals. Sometimes, it can be helpful to talk to a therapist or counselor. They can provide support and guidance.

In conclusion, Youth Violence is a serious issue. It affects many people, both directly and indirectly. It is important to work together to prevent it from happening. We must learn to recognize the warning signs and take action to help those in need.
somebody and go to jail, it could affect your future very badly. The sixth way is to be surrounded with positive people. Being with positive people will help you on staying away from any kind of violence. The seventh way is to tell the truth. If you see someone being mean to someone else and the teacher or an adult ask if its true, say the truth people then the bully will stop. The eighth way to stop youth violence is to get involved at school or in your community to stay out of that trouble. The ninth way is to learn how to manage your anger. Those are ways to stop youth violence. Remember, don’t do youth violence!
somebody else to fill it could affect your future very badly. The skin may also be surrounded with poison people using with poison people will also help you on getting away from any kind of violence. The Senator may also say the truth. If you see someone being mean to someone else and this report on on should ask if is once say the truth people then the bully will stop. The biggest way to stop your violence is to get involved at school or in your community to stick out of your trouble. The mind never is to keep your anger to manage your anger. Listen me wise to stop your violence. Remember you're doing your violence!