What I can do about youth violence is not to do it and not to see it. What I really can do about youth violence is to tell an adult or a policeman to say to them there a man outside of my house doing something and I don't like it one bit and he's there smoking and selling drugs. I really want to do something about youth violence is that to start a club in the high school for people who can prevent youth violence. I really don't like youth violence because you can really get hurt like in gangs if they tell you do that not right one bit that just people who raised you and then you do that to them that's not right.
How has violence affected my life. Violence affected my life in many ways. Like when me and my sister fight all the time. Like a lot. It always puts me sad and it puts me in a weird place. When we fight it makes me cry and really sad. I think that me and my sister are never going to stop fighting physically. I just hate it. And I hate how other people try to kill other people and them self. It just makes me sad to think about that stuff. It puts me in sad place. Because deep inside you really love that person that really on the outside you hate them. Maybe that person is like a sister or a brother. It's okay that you may not like that person but it's not okay to bully them or kill them. I think the causes of youth violence is drugs and gangs and upset and revenge. I feel like that's really bad because then it really effects other people. Like what happen in Newton Stanford that really puts me sad because what if my cousin was in that school. I don't know what to do if he was there. By stopping violence we can start a club that keeps kids off the street. And that are gang and selling drugs. "Drugs can kill you so stop." I really want to make a difference in the world. But I can't because I'm only 11 years old. What Can a 11-year-old can do nothing but just watch them and it kills me to watch people doing that. I can stop youth violence if you have a family member that you don't like them go to a therapist and say what you have to say sorry to each other because really you want to say sorry to them. Another thing I can do about youth violence is that in school we can start a club that's for stressed out kids, or stay away for drugs and alcohol and to get involved in sports. You can also stand up to a bully by getting all the kids that she/he bullied and go up to their faces and tell stop bullying us we don't like it one bit. And the government should take all the gangs away to stop youth violence. And that's how I can stop youth violence. Violence affected my life because it really put's in a sad place when you know what the world is coming to gangs, guns, alcohol and zombies, drugs, oh my gosh.
