Violence has affected my life so much. If we never had violence, you wouldn't hear no one complaining about people being loud outside at night or even in the day time. Also violence has affected me because now people always want to set up each other. What I mean about that is that they will do something bad to themselves but then they would say it wasn't me, it was that person then that person ends up getting locked up. It's like watching people getting hurt, locked up (going to jail) and dying is really depressing and sad. I'm sure that if violence stops everyone would feel free and life would just be amazing. If I were to stop violence somehow I would like try to make a good speech trying to persuade the reader or whoever is reading my speech. Actually I would read myself in front of everyone.
