March 5, 2013

I think youth violence is bad because it makes me and my family and many more people scared. And youth violence should be solved so all the people that are scared won’t be scared. Youth violence has affected me personally because it makes me scared. It makes me scared to walk outside, and constantly think I am going to get jumped, or shot. And it makes me scared to hear about people getting raped. And because of all this violence people don’t like to go out, because they are afraid of all the violence. I think the cause of violence is parents that don’t influence their kids and don’t pay attention to their kids. I think this because then when their children grow up their going to think they can do whatever they want. Like breaking laws and becoming drug dealers, too, and a bunch of other violent and illegal things. But some ways youth violence can be stopped is if a teacher, parent talks to the kids and tells what’s bad about being a part of violence, or laws could be enforced more, and more police could be on the street watching out for violence. My main point is that violence is bad. And if you’re of it you’ll go to jail and have a bad life, so don’t be a part of violence.