Youth violence is horrible. It makes people feel bad. And also makes people take drastic measures. An example of youth violence, that I've seen was a fight at my school.

How does violence affect my daily life. Violence affects my life by making me feel bad for that innocent person. Just looking at it, makes me sick. Soon they commit suicide to end their suffering. I know that I can try. I just know that I can help them.

Where am I confronted by violence? Home? School? My neighborhood? All. I have been confronted by violence at home. When my folks "fight." At school there was a fight. In my neighborhood, (near it) someone was beaten and robbed. I felt horrible, to see it on the news.

What are some of the causes of violence in my community? A mental illness? Some peer pressure? Addicted to drugs? A violent video game? The media? Built up rage? They may not get enough love. Or maybe they don't have a role model to look up to.

What can I do as an individual do to reduce youth violence in my Community? Something I can do as an individual to stop the violence in my community, is to help others who need or want to be helped. Or I can stand up for others who can't stand up for themselves. Sometimes I feel bad if I don't do something and the person or people who had gotten involved, or who were forced to get involved. Maybe even a witness, or even some witnesses got hit and got hurt. I don't want to be able to make a difference. I want to be the difference.

In conclusion, youth violence is very, very, horrible. It makes people feel bad. And then, the next thing you know, BANG!!! suicide. They'll go to drastic measures to make their suffering stop. Like I said before, there was a fight that had taken place at my own school, a good school, at 7:30am sharp. I think that one of the best solutions to make the violence in my community be able to be subdued, is to communicate with others. The main reason fights happen is because people aren't communicating
With each other. Mainly because the message was given incorrectly to the other person. Then, a fight breaks out. Hope this helps you if someone is getting picked on.

With sincere regret, Mother knows little or nothing of the weather. Can I help you? A far cry from your last visit.

Hope you have many a laugh. It's better that way.

Best,
