Something people should do to stop the violence is when they see someone getting bullied by another person you should stand up for them, then help that person. Violence is not a good way to start your life because if you use violence on other people you are making a big mistake on your life.

Violence affected my life because sometime people in the street get shot by other people or a gang member. Violence affected my life because it made me sad seeing other kids at school getting bullied by another person so that lead the kid who gets bullied to kill himself. Violence also affected my life because people who are in gang want revenge so they go out to the streets and kill people.

Sometimes people get in violence ways because maybe they didn't have a good life or they don't feel good about themselves, or anger, drug, alcohol. Sometimes people hurt other people because they want revenge the person who hurt the other person doesn't have a role model. Another reason why people act in violence is because some one older than them is fostering them to do it.
Something I can do is when I see someone getting bully go get help from an adult or stand up for the person. Also if you see someone getting hurt by a big person stand up for him or protect from the person. And if one of my friend was becoming a bully I will talk to him so he change.

I hope that in 10 year Boston will change and turn into a peaceful world and that children don't have to worry about their safety in school or at their house. I hope that big people stop bullying small people.
