Violence.

Violence has affected many, many lives, and once it affected my life also. Violence has affected so many ways in my life. And one example was when my parents got separated. When my parents got separated it was because of violence. This affected my life because I got so frustrated that sometimes I couldn't breath and I got Asthma. The causes of youth violence is the Home-encvironment. Children's learn what they live. If home is violent or abusive that's what a child learn to expect. What I can do about youth violence is not be a bystander. This is because then you might get involved and end up hurt or with problems with someone. And this is how violence affected my life's and other people's lives. That's why when you see that there's a problem you might want to make a difference and change it early because then it's too late.